

Contents

Preface	V
Introduction	1
1. Some Biographical Notes	1
2. The Present Book	17
3. Some Perspectives	20
Selected Literature	21

Part One: Two Questions

Chapter 1
Can the Science of Religion Render Service to the Study of Islam? ..	25
1. Islamic Studies in Context	25
2. Studying Islam as a Religion	27
3. The Science of Religion Contributing to the Study of Islam ...	29
3.1. The Term "Islam"	29
3.2. Objective and Subjective Meanings	30
3.3. Statements on Islam Studied as Interpretations of Islam ..	31
3.4. Ways of Interpreting and Constructing Islam	32
3.5. Islam Viewed as the Order of Creation	33
3.6. Islam Studied as an Interpretative System that is itself Continuously Interpreted	34
4. Studying Constructions of Islam	34
4.1. Variety of Constructions	35
4.2. Claims of Universality	35
4.3. Cultural Heyday of Islam	36
5. Islam under Construction	36
Selected Literature: The Study of Religions	37
Chapter 2
Can We Study Islam as a Signification System?	40
1. Introduction	40
2. The Concept of a Signification System	41
3. Subjective Meanings	42

4. Interest in Meanings	45
5. Islam Studied as a Signification System	46
6. The Proposed Approach Summarized	48
Selected Literature: Islamic Studies	50

Part Two: Issues in Islamic Studies

Chapter 3

Islamic Studies and the Study of Religions and Cultures	55
1. Introduction	55
2. Islamic Studies and the Historical Study of Religions	58
3. Islamic Studies and the Comparative Study of Religious Data ..	62
4. Islamic Studies and Discussions on Method and Theory in the Study of Religions	66
5. Studying Religious Aspects of Islam	70
6. Some Basic Distinctions	72
7. The Study of "Religion" in Islamic Studies	74
8. The Role of Religion in Muslim Societies	79
9. The Role of Religion in Inspiring Muslim Spirituality	80
10. Conclusion	81
Selected Literature	82

Chapter 4

Some Social Scientific Orientations in Islamic Studies	86
1. Introduction	86
2. The Humanities	88
3. The Social Sciences	90
4. Social Scientific Research on Muslim Societies since World War II	92
4.1. Anthropology	93
4.2. Sociology	95
4.3. Political Science	97
5. A Plea for Impartial Research on Religion and Politics	97
6. Contributions of the Social Sciences to Islamic Studies	99
6.1. Theoretical Contributions	99
6.2. Empirical Contributions	101
7. Representing Islam as a Religion	103
8. Conclusion	104
Selected Literature	106

Chapter 5
Islamic Studies and Intercultural Relations	108
1. Introduction	108
2. Some Contexts of Islamic Studies Before 1950	109
2.1. Rapid Survey of Historical Contexts	110
2.2. Politics	112
2.3. Religion	113
2.4. Education	115
3. Islamic Studies in Context	116
3.1. Islamic Studies	116
3.2. Modern Trends in Islam	117
3.3. Muslim Apologetics and Criticism of Islamic Studies	119
4. Muslims in the West	122
4.1. Islam in the West	122
4.2. Muslims in Colonial Societies	123
4.3. Muslims in Western Societies	124
5. Differentiation in Islamic Studies	125
5.1. Academic Islamic Studies	125
5.2. Muslim "Study of Islam"	128
6. Conclusion	131
Appendix: Personal Reflections on an Anti-Cultural World	134
Selected Literature	136
1. Intercultural Relations and Islam	136
2. Muslim Discovery of Europe	137
3. Muslims in Europe and North America	137
4. The Muslim World and the Western World	139
Chapter 6
Presuppositions and Assumptions in Islamic Studies	141
1. Introduction	141
2. Presuppositions and Assumptions	141
2.1. Presuppositions	143
2.2. Assumptions	145
3. Islamic Studies	147
4. Presuppositions and Assumptions in Islamic Studies	148
Selected Literature	151
1. General Approaches and Methods	151
2. Interpretative Approaches	153

Part Three: The Practice of Islamic Studies in History

Chapter 7

Massignon as a Student of Islam (1883–1962)	157
1. Louis Massignon. Life and Work	158
1.1. Spirituality	159
1.2. Research	159
1.3. Politics	161
1.4. Legacy	163
2. Research on Islam as a Religion	163
2.1. Al-Hallāj	164
2.2. Islam	165
2.3. Dedication	166
3. Impact on Islamic Studies	168
3.1. Immediate Influences	168
3.2. Impact on Islamic Studies	171
4. Three Groups of Followers	171
4.1. Catholic Orientalists	171
4.2. Muslim Intellectuals	174
4.3. Arab Christians	175
5. A Scholar's Mind	176
6. Conclusion	179
Selected Literature	182
1. Bio-bibliography	182
2. Scholarly Publications	183
3. More Personal Writings	185
4. Main Publications about Louis Massignon	185

Chapter 8

Some Developments and Trends in Islamic Studies Since 1950	189
1. Looking Back on Islamic Studies	189
2. The Study of Early Islamic History	193
2.1. Studying Muhammad in his Society	193
2.2. The Qur'an Studied as Text	194
2.3. Hadith Studies	197
2.4. The Medinan Period	198
3. Islamic Thought and Spirituality	198
4. Historical Encounters between Islam and Other Civilizations and Religions	200
5. Observing Islamic Studies	202
5.1. Studying Muslim Societies	202
5.2. Scholarly Procedures	204

6. Islamic Studies: Changes	206
6.1. Changes in Perspective and New Orientations of Study ..	206
6.2. Looking Forward in Islamic Studies	208
6.3. Scholars of Islamic Studies	210
7. Contexts of Islamic Studies	211
Selected Literature: Some Subjects of Research Since 1950	213
1. History of Islamic Studies as a Field	213
2. Early Islamic History	214
2.1. The Rise of Islam	214
2.2. Muhammad	215
2.3. Qur'ānic Studies	215
2.4. Hadīth Studies	216
2.5. Early History and Historiography	216
3. Islamic Thought and Spirituality	217
3.1. Medieval and Later	217
3.2. Contemporary	218
4. Encounters with Other Civilizations	218
4.1. Encounters with the West and Christianity	218
4.2. Encounters with Other Cultures and Religions than the Western Ones	219

Chapter 9

Recent Scholarly Presentations of Islam	221
1. Introduction	221
2. Wilfred Cantwell Smith: Conceptualization in Islam and in Islamic Studies	223
3. Gustave E. von Grunebaum: Islam as Medieval Culture	229
4. Annemarie Schimmel: Islam as Deciphering the Signs	231
5. Seyyed Hossein Nasr: Islam as "Traditional" Islam	235
6. Mohammed Arkoun: Rethinking Islam	243
7. Conclusion	249

Selected Literature: Bibliography, Books on Islam, Articles,

Discussion and Research	251
1. Arkoun, Mohammed	251
2. Grunebaum, Gustave E. von	253
3. Nasr, Seyyed Hossein	256
4. Schimmel, Annemarie	257
5. Smith, Wilfred Cantwell	259

Chapter 10

Islamic and Religious Studies under the Conditions

of the Cold War 262

1. Conflicts and Ideological Distortions 262
2. Two Opposing Views of Islam 263
 - 2.1. The USSR 264
 - 2.2. The West 266
 - 2.3. Islamic Studies 267
3. Some Corrections Imposed on Distorted Views of Islam 268
4. A Visit to the USSR 271
5. The Study of Religions in East and West 275
6. Conclusion 279

Selected Literature 280

Part Four: Studying Religions

Chapter 11

Religions as a Subject of Empirical Research 285

1. Issues of Research at the Beginning 285
2. The Attraction of a Science of Religion 287
3. Some Western Views and Constructs of the Study of Religion 288
4. Empirical Research into Religion 289
5. Schemes of Interpretation of Religion 290
6. Religion as an (Un)known Subject of Study 291
7. Development of Theoretical Thinking 292
8. Explanatory Theory 293
9. Hermeneutic Orientations 294
10. Conclusion 295

Selected Literature 297

1. History of the Field 297
2. Some Questions of Method and Theory 300

Chapter 12

Classical Phenomenology of Religion in the Netherlands

1920–1950 302

1. The Problem 303
2. Image Formation of Religions Before the Phenomenological
Movement 305
3. Image Formation in Classical Phenomenology of Religion 307

4. Image Formation of Particular Religions Among Dutch Phenomenologists	309
5. The Presentation of Religion in Dutch Classical Phenomenology of Religion	312
5.1. Classical Phenomenology of Religion and the Emancipation of ' Religionswissenschaft '	314
5.2. Classical Phenomenology of Religion: Aims and Results	316
5.3. The Context of the Phenomenology of Religion in the Netherlands 1918–1939	321
6. G. van der Leeuw's Conceptualization of Religion	323
7. Conclusion	324
Selected Literature	325
Chapter 13
Eliade as a Student of Religion (1907–1986)	331
1. Mircea Eliade. Life and Work	331
1.1. Biographical data	331
1.2. Eliade Studying Religion	335
2. The Study of Religions. Construct and Reality	338
2.1. The Study of Religions up to Eliade	339
2.2. Some Critical Remarks on Eliade's Approach	341
3. Conceptualizing Religion after Eliade	342
4. Eliade's Time and Ours	345
Selected Literature	349
1. Bio-bibliography	349
2. Main Publications in English, with Years of their First Appearance	350
3. Some Monographs about Eliade	352
4. Some Collective Works about Eliade	353
5. Some Articles about Eliade	354
6. Some Contexts of Eliade's Work	355

Part Five: Muslims and Their Islam

Chapter 14
Believers in Focus. Exploring Muslim Life	359
1. Believers as Potential Actors	359
2. A Philosophical Intermezzo. Meaning and Significance	362
3. Significance and Subjective Meanings	365
4. Research on Subjective Meanings	368

5. Toward Understanding Subjective Meanings. Intentions	370
6. Conclusion	372
Selected Literature	373
1. Muslim Life	373
2. Islam in Literature	374
3. Ethics, Justice, and Human Rights in Islam	374
4. Encounters Between Believers	375
5. Believers' Identities	376
6. Religion in the World	376
 Chapter 15
Islamic Reform and Renewal. Recourse to Scripture	377
1. Introduction	377
2. Kinds of Reform and Forces Opposing It	378
2.1. The Term "Reform": Three Meanings	378
2.2. Three Kinds of Movements of Reform	379
2.3. Religions Developed from Reform Movements	381
2.4. Social Reforms and Religion	383
2.5. Forces Opposing Reform	384
3. Islamic Reform and the Shari'a	386
4. Studying Reformers and Reform	388
5. Reflecting on the Notion of Reform	390
Appendix: A Note on Reading Scriptures	392
1. Religious Readings	392
2. Literary and Historical Interpretations	393
3. Common Structures of the Scriptural Religions	395
4. Common Structures Around the Scriptures	396
5. Reform Movements and their Reading of Scripture	397
Selected Literature	398
1. Initiatives to Reform and Renewal in Islam Before 1970	398
2. Present-Day Thinking on Renewal of Islam	399
3. Reinterpretations of Islam in Terms of Reform	401
4. Islamic Resurgence and Politics	402
5. Islam in/and the West	403
6. Worldwide Islam	404
7. Ideas and Developments in Contemporary Islam	405
8. Situation and Future of Women	406
9. Situation and Role of Religious Authorities	407
10. Some Subjects of Current debate	407

Appendix: A Note on Reading Scriptures	408
1. Scripture in general	408
2. Scriptures in Judaism, Christianity and Islam	408
3. Scripture in Islam	409
4. New Kinds of Muslim Qur'ān Exegesis, Reading, and Interpretation	409
5. Some Studies about New Kinds of Muslim Qur'ān Interpretation	410

Part Six: Further Reading (Bibliography)

1. Middle Eastern Responses to Islamic Studies. The Orientalism Debate	413
2. Religion(s) and the Study of Religion(s)	421
2.1. The Concept of Religion	421
2.2. Discussions around a Science of Religion. Method and Explanatory Theory	422
2.3. Anthropology of Religion	431
2.4. Comparative-Historical Research	433
2.5. Sociology and Psychology of Religion	436
3. Interpretative Studies of Religion	436
3.1. The Phenomenology Debate	436
3.2. Scholarly Hermeneutic Orientations	441
3.3. Some Comprehensive Reflections	446
4. Gender and the Study of Religion	447
4.1. Gender and Religion in General	447
4.2. Gender and Islam	449
5. The Study of Religion(s) in Various Countries	451
6. Islamic Studies in Various Countries	456

Indexes

1. Index of Persons	460
2. Index of Subjects	463
3. Index of Concepts (Problem-Oriented)	468