

Introduction	1
Eugene H. Casad

Section I: At ground level

X What's cognitive about cognitive linguistics?	27
Raymond W. Gibbs
Neurological evidence for a cognitive theory of syntax: Agrammatic aphasia and the spatialization of form hypothesis	55
Paul Deane
Cost in language acquisition, language processing and language change	117
Dorit Ravid
From cognitive psychology to cognitive linguistics and back again: The study of category structure	147
Barbara C. Malt
Historical aspects of categorization	175
Gábor Györi
Unpacking markedness	207
Laura A. Janda

Section II: Within morphology and the lexicon

The cognitive frame of a set of cricket terms Willem J. Botha	237
Towards a cognitive account of the use of the prepositions por and para in Spanish Nicole Delbecque	249
What are copula verbs? Bruce Horton	319
The semantics of "empty prepositions" in French Suzanne E. Kemmer and Hava Bat-Zeev Shyldkrot	347
Getting at the meaning of make Keedong Lee	389
Motion metaphorized: The case of coming and going Günter Radden	423
Liegen and stehen in German: A study in horizontality and verticality Carlo Serra Borneto	459
The semantics of the Chinese verb "come" Ya-Ming Shen	507
Touching : A minimal transmission of energy Claude Vandeloise	541

Section III: Some of the architecture

Complement construal in French: A cognitive perspective Michel Achard	569
--	-----

Typology of if -clauses Angeliki Athanasiadou and René Dirven	609
Boundedness in temporal and spatial domains Hana Filip	655
Case markers and clause linkage: Toward a semantic typology Toshio Ohori	693
The thing is is that people talk that way. The question is is Why? David Tuggy	713
A cognitive grammar account of bound anaphora Karen van Hoek	753
Sequential conceptualization and linear order Arie Verhagen	793
Section IV: Higher levels of the architecture
Cognitive aspects of verbal interaction Jacqueline Lindenfeld	821
The interaction of folk models and syntax: Case choice after prepositional verbs of cognition in German Johanna Rubba	837
Computer modelling of text comprehension Inger Lytje	867

Section V: The varieties in Native America

The radial structure of the Wanka reportative Rick Floyd	895
Chiquihuitlán Mazatec postverbs: The role of extension in incorporation Carole Jamieson Capen	943
Frames and semantics of applicatives in Tepehua James K. Watters	971
List of contributors	997
Index	1001