

Table of contents

Preface	VII
1. Historical outline	1
1.1 Saussure's theory of "les coefficients sonantiques" A , Q	1
1.2 Saussure's theory before Anatolian h was introduced	3
1.3 The modern laryngeal theory (with Anatolian h as its main support)	5
1.3.1 The full laryngeal theory	6
1.3.1.1 Kurylowicz	7
1.3.1.2 Pedersen and Hendriksen	10
1.3.1.3 Benveniste	12
1.3.1.4 Couvreur	13
1.3.1.5 Sapir—Sturtevant	14
1.3.1.6 Lehmann	18
1.3.1.7 Martinet (Puhvel, Diver)	22
1.3.1.8 "Evidence for laryngeals" (1965) p. 26. — 1.3.1.8.1 "Evidence in Anatolian" (J. Puhvel) p. 26. — 1.3.1.8.2 "Indo-Iranian evidence" (H. M. Hoenigswald) p. 26. — 1.3.1.8.3 "Armenian evidence" (W. Winter) p. 27. — 1.3.1.8.4 "Evidence in Balto-Slavic" (C. Watkins) p. 27. — 1.3.1.8.5 "Evidence in Albanian" (E. P. Hamp) p. 27. — 1.3.1.8.6 "Evidence in Greek" (W. Cowgill) p. 28. — 1.3.1.8.7 "Evidence in Italic" (C. Watkins) p. 29. — 1.3.1.8.8 "Tocharian evidence" (W. Winter) p. 29. — 1.3.1.8.9 "Germanic evidence" (W. P. Lehmann) p. 30. — 1.3.1.8.10 "Evidence in Celtic" (E. P. Hamp) p. 30	31
1.3.1.9 Schmitt-Brandt	33
1.3.1.10 Kuiper	34
1.3.1.11 Beekes	37
1.3.1.12 Keiler	39
1.3.1.13 Lindeman	41
1.3.1.14 Summary of the contents of the modern full laryngeal theory p. 41. — 1.3.1.14.1 The base or core p. 42. — 1.3.1.14.2 Other, more special, applications of the laryngeal theory p. 43. — 1.3.1.14.3 Variations of the laryngeal theory p. 45. — 1.3.1.14.4 The supports or proofs of the laryngeal theory p. 47	48
1.3.2 The reduced laryngeal theory	49
1.3.2.1 The later Kurylowicz	49
1.3.2.2 Zgusta	49

1.3.2.3	Szemerényi	49
1.3.2.4	On the supports or proofs of the reduced laryngeal theory	50
1.3.3	Disregard or denial of the modern laryngeal theory	50
2.	Discussion of Anatolian $\bar{h}$	54
2.1	On the languages and their writing	54
2.2	Etymological discussion of Anatolian linguistic material with $\bar{h}$..	59
2.2.1	Words with initial $\bar{h}$	61
2.2.2	Words with $-\bar{h}(\bar{h})-$	68
2.2.3	$\bar{h}$ in suffixes and endings	75
2.2.4	Summary of 2.2.1—3	76
2.3	How does $\bar{h}$ in IE linguistic material agree with the laryngeal theory?	77
2.3.1	The distribution of $\bar{h}$ in IE linguistic material and the laryngeal theory	77
2.3.1.1	$\bar{h}$ and “ $V- < HV-$, and/or H behind the quality of $a-$ (and o^2-)”	78
2.3.1.2	$\bar{h}$ and “ $\bar{V} < VH$, and H behind the quality of $\bar{a}$ (and non-apophonic $\bar{o}$)”	79
2.3.1.3	$\bar{h}$ and “ H behind $\bar{a}$ and $\bar{R}$ ”	81
2.3.1.4	$\bar{h}$ and “ H behind prothetic vowels in Gr. and Arm. and/or certain other traces of initial HR in Gr.”	82
2.3.1.5	Occurrences of $\bar{h}$ that are unwarranted or embarrassing from the point of view of the laryngeal theory	83
2.3.1.6	Summary of 2.3.1.1—5	84
2.3.2	The sound value of $\bar{h}$ and the laryngeal theory	86
2.4	Must Anatolian $\bar{h}$ be given a PIE origin?	86
3.	Discussion of other assumed supports or proofs of the laryngeal theory than Anatolian $\bar{h}$	90
3.1	Assumed more general (structural) supports or proofs	90
3.2	Assumed more specific supports or proofs	96
3.2.1	Assumed more special (morphological) supports or proofs of $\bar{V} < VH$ (and of the special case $\bar{a} < eA$)	98
3.2.1.1	The $n\bar{a}$ -present	98
3.2.1.2	The full grade form $CR\bar{V}-$ in set-roots (and $\bar{V}$ as root-enlargement)	100
3.2.1.3	Skt lengthening of short vowels at the end of words or morphemes	102
3.2.1.4	Long vowels in reduplication-syllables	104
3.2.1.5	Shortening of final long vowels before initial vowels and in pauses	104
3.2.1.6	Hiatus in Skt	105
3.2.1.7	Primary $\bar{o}$ as a suffix or an ending? p. 106. — 3.2.1.7.1 $\bar{a}/\bar{o}$ in the neut. pl. and in stem formants (possibly) related to it p. 106. — 3.2.1.7.2 The nom./

dual. $-\bar{o}(u)$, $-\bar{i}$, $-\bar{u}$ p. 107. — 3.2.1.7.3 Instr. sing. $-\bar{a}$, $-\bar{i}$, $-\bar{u}$ p. 108
3.2.2 Other assumed traces of H	109
3.2.2.1 The skewed distribution of the vowels a and o ² p. 109. — 3.2.2.1.2 On a (and $\bar{a}$) p. 109. — 3.2.2.1.2 On o ² (and fundamental $\bar{o}$) p. 115
3.2.2.2 Prothetic vowels in Gr. and Arm.	119
3.2.2.3 “Schwebeablaut” ReC(C) : aRC(C) -	120
3.2.2.4 The loss of a before vowels	122
3.2.2.5 Certain aspirates in Indo-Iranian (and other IE dialects)	123
3.2.2.6 Certain occurrences of k (and g)	123
3.2.2.7 Certain exceptions to “Brugmann’s law”	125
3.2.2.8 PIE and/or Gmc $\bar{i}\bar{i}$, $\bar{u}\bar{u}$	126
3.2.2.9 The zero grade of the set-roots	128
3.2.2.10 Certain occurrences of Arm. h	133
3.2.2.11 Certain occurrences of Albanian h , γ , $\acute{g}$	134
3.2.2.12 Assumed traces of initial HR in Gr.	134
3.3 Summing up appraisal of 3.1—2	135
4. Decision concerning the laryngeal theory	137
5. Excursus to chapter 2: Anatolian h in verb endings, and the Anatolian verb system	140
5.1 List of the Anatolian verb endings	140
5.2 Explanations given of the Hitt. (and Anatolian) verb system	142
5.2.1 Kronasser	142
5.2.2 Kammenhuber	143
5.2.3 Neu	144
5.3 My own position	150
5.3.1 The endings of the active voice	150
5.3.2 Anatolian medio-pass.	154
5.3.3 Where is direct correspondence found between Anatolian h and other IE dialects $\emptyset$ in verb endings?	155
Some term explanations, abbreviations and symbols	157
References	158
Word index	165