

Contents

Acknowledgments	vii
Tribute to Bodo Nischan Anthony J. Papalas	ix
The Bibliography of Bodo Nischan Anthony J. Papalas	xiii
Introduction John M. Headley	xvii

I. Historical Definitions

“Confessionalization: The Career of a Concept” Thomas A. Brady, Jr.	1
Confessionalization: Historical and Scholarly Perspectives of a Comparative and Interdisciplinary Paradigm Heinz Schilling	21
Problems of the Term and Concept “Second Reformation”: Memories of a 1980s Debate Harm Klueting	37

II. Confessionalization in German Lands

“Founding a New Church ...”: The Early Ecclesiology of Martin Luther in the Light of the Debate about Confessionalization Markus Wriedt	51
The Braunschweig Resolution: The Corpus Doctrinae Prutenicum of Joachim Mörlin and Martin Chemnitz as an Interpretation of Wittenberg Theology Robert Kolb	67
Johann Pfeffinger’s Treatises of 1550 in Defense of Adiaphora: “High Church” Lutheranism and Confessionalization in Albertine Saxony Luther D. Peterson	91

“Christians’ Mourning and Lament Should not Be Like the Heathens”: The Suppression of Religious Emotion in the Reformation Susan C. Karant-Nunn	107
Astrology and the Confessions in the Empire, c. 1550–1620 Robin B. Barnes	131
Confessionalization and the Campaign against Prenuptial Coitus in Sixteenth-Century Germany Terence McIntosh	155
“The Queen of Evidence”: The Witchcraft Confession in the Age of Confessionalism Thomas Robisheaux	175
“The Second Bucer”: John Dury’s Mission to the Swiss Reformed Churches in 1654–55 and the Search for Confessional Unity Bruce Gordon	207
Catholic Confessionalism in Germany after 1650 Marc Forster	227

III. Confessionalization beyond the Germanies

Fashioning Reformed Identity in Early Modern France Raymond A. Mentzer	243
Confessionalization beyond the Germanies: The Case of France Mack P. Holt	257
Reconstructing the Context for Confessionalization in Late Tudor England: Perceptions of Reception, Then and Now Peter Iver Kaufman	275
The Formation of the Pious Soul: Trans-alpine Demand for Jesuit Devotional Texts, 1548–1615 Lance Lazar	289

IV. Toward the Dismantling of Confessionalization

Political Unity and Religious Diversity: Hermann Conring’s Confessional Writings and the Preface to Aristotle’s Politics of 1637 Constantin Fasolt	319
Thomas More’s Horrific Vision: The Advent of Constituted Dissent John M. Headley	347
Index	359