

CONTENTS

Introduction	xii
Chapter 1. The Historical and Political Context of Electoral Trends since 1918	1
1 The Watershed	1
1.1 Old Issues Resolved by Legislation	1
1.1.1 Franchise Changes	1
1.1.2 Religious Confrontation	3
1.1.3 The People versus the Peers: Democratic Confrontation	4
1.2 Old Issues Resolved by the War	5
1.2.1 The Drink Trade and the People's Budget	5
1.2.2 The Issue of Party	6
1.3 Issues that Survived the First War	8
1.3.1 Unemployment and Social Reform	8
1.3.2 Trade Union Powers	8
1.3.3 Socialisation	9
1.3.4 Defence and Tariff Reform	9
2 The Course of Party Appeals Since 1918	9
2.1 Opposition Status	9
2.2 Candidate Profiles	10
2.3 Manifestos	11
2.3.1 Starting Positions: the 1918 and 1922 Manifestos	11
2.3.2 The Tariff Election	13
2.3.3 Continuities in Labour Manifestos—Internationalism, Socialism, Class Interests and Trade Union Powers	13

2.3.4	Continuities in Conservative Manifestos – Patriotism, Resistance to Socialism and Support for the Property Owning Democracy	15
2.3.5	Continuities in Liberal Manifestos – Interest-Free, Innovative and Anti-Bureaucratic	17
2.3.6	Special Industries	18
2.3.7	National Areas	19
3	Review	20
3.1	General Issues	20
3.2	Issues and Social Groups	22
4	Summary of Issues	23
5	Summary of Electoral Implications of Issues	25
Chapter 2: Basic Voting Patterns at a Post-War Election: 1966		27
1	Why 1966?	27
1.1	A Simple Party System	27
1.2	The First Census Data on Parliamentary Constituencies	27
1.2.1	Preliminary Analysis of Available Census Data	27
1.3	The First Comprehensive Survey Study of a British Election	29
1.3.1	An Empirical Check on the Relationship between Issues and Social Groups	30
2	The Meanings of Class	36
2.1	Characteristics that Define Class	36
2.2	Controls for Correlated Attributes	37
2.3	Multiple Links to Class	38
3	The Meanings of Polarisation	38
3.1	Fit or Slope	38
3.2	The Effect of Simple Spatial Aggregation	39
3.3	Party Symmetry	41
4	The Z Model: A Simple Two Level Model of Class Polarisation	42
4.1	Empirical Contradictions in a Single Level Model	42
4.2	Size of Area Spanned by Environmental Influences of Different Kinds	43
4.3	Power of Environmental Influences	44

5	Some Theoretical Explanations of Environmental Effects	48
5.1	Survey Evidence of Environmental Influences on Political Attitudes, Class Consciousness and Voting	49
6	Curvilinear Models: Some More Advanced Two Level Models of Class Polarisation	52
6.1	Survey Evidence	58
6.2	Comparative Analyses of Constituency Evidence	59
7	Political Alternatives to Labour and Conservative Voting: Basic Social Patterns	61
7.1	Liberal Voting	61
7.2	Turnout	63
8	Summary	65
	Chapter 3: Variations and Trends in Post-War Voting Patterns	67
1	Why 1955-70?	67
2	Classification of Variations from Socio-Political Alignments	67
3	The Limits of Temporal Change	68
4	Dynamics of Multi Level Class Polarisation	71
4.1	The Z Model	71
4.2	Trends in Survey Polarisation	74
4.3	Trends in Constituency Polarisation	76
4.4	Polarisation or Depolarisation between 1955 and 1970?	77
5	Trends in Secondary Social Patterns 1955-70	82
5.1	Basic Multiple Regressions	83
5.2	Explanations of Deviations from the Alignments Described by the Basic Equations	84
5.2.1	Classes	85
5.2.2	Property Owning Democracy	85
5.2.3	Urban-Rural Dimension	86
5.2.4	Immigration	86
5.2.5	Unemployment	86
5.2.6	Age and Sex	87
5.2.7	Special Industries: Agriculture, Mining, Defence	87
5.2.8	Nations and Regions	88
6	A Three-Way Battle	93

7	Summary	95
Chapter 4: Units, Measures and Methods for Longer Term Analysis		97
1	Introduction: Essential Features of Longer Term Analysis	97
2	Units	98
2.1	Matching Census and Parliamentary Boundaries	98
2.2	Effect on Regressions of Aggregation beyond the Constituency	99
2.2.1	Effects on Slopes and Correlations	99
2.2.2	Weighting	105
2.2.3	Split Level Regressions	106
2.2.4	Time as the Ultimate Spatial Aggregate	106
3	Variables	107
3.1	Political	107
3.2	Social	109
3.2.1	Definitions	109
3.2.2	Persistence	111
3.2.3	Comparisons with Measures used in Other Studies	112
4	Methods	114
4.1	Symmetric Representation for Three Party Systems	114
4.2	Factor Analysis of Three Party Outcomes	119
4.3	Regression Methods for Three Party Systems	121
4.3.1	Political Orientations of Several Social Alignments	121
4.3.2	Principal Political Orientation of a Complex of Social Alignments	122
5	Summary	126
Chapter 5: Basic Social Alignments 1918-74		129
1	The Limits of Temporal Change	129
1.1	Trends in the Levels of Party Votes	129
1.2	Trends in the Distribution of Party Votes	130
1.3	Continuities in Party Votes	131
2	Four Basic Social Divisions	137
3	Cohort Analyses of Survey Data	138
3.1	Two Interpretations of Cohort Analysis	138

3.2	Cohort Analysis of the Class and Sectarian Alignments	139
3.3	Cohorts and the Social Structure of Issues	141
4	The Sectarian Environment	143
5	Contemporary Voting Returns Analysed by Census Data	144
5.1	Social Predictors and Spatial Controls	144
5.2	Class Polarisation 1918–74	146
5.3	Class, Sectarian, Religious and Rural Alignments 1918–74	151
5.3.1	Class	151
5.3.2	Sect	154
5.3.3	Religiosity	155
5.3.4	Rurality	156
5.3.5	The Centre	156
5.3.6	Interaction	158
5.3.7	Turnout	159
5.4	Principal Social Alignments 1918–74	160
6	The Contribution from Patterns of Candidature	162
6.1	Social Structure of Candidature 1918–45	162
6.2	Effect on Voting 1918–45	165
6.3	Three-Way Contests in 1929, 1950 and 1974	168
7	Contradictions and Reconciliations	169
8	Summary	172
Chapter 6: Variations from Basic Alignments 1918–74		175
1	Varieties of Non-conformity within England 1918–74	175
2	Middle England, England, England and Wales: a Search for Homogeneity	179
3	Scotland 1918–74	182
3.1	Crofting, Scottish Politics and the Scottish Census	185
3.2	Class, Religious and Rural Alignments in Scotland 1918–74	187
4	Trends in Secondary Social Patterns within England 1918–74	194
4.1	Basic Controls	194
4.2	The Classes	195
4.3	Sect and Religiosity	198
4.4	Sect, Religiosity, Language and National effects in England and Wales	198

4.5	English Regions
4.6	The Urban-Rural Dimension	203
4.7	Education	207
4.8	The Property Owning Democracy	207
4.9	Unemployment	210
4.10	Immigration	212
4.11	Sector and Industry	212
4.12	Summary of Best Explanations of Residual Variation from Simple Regression Predictions	217
4.13	Residual Variation after Multiple Controls for Class, Sect, Rurality and Interactions	218
4.14	Another look at the Property Owning Democracy	218
5	Summary	221
Chapter 7: Review		224
1	Party Control of Social Alignments	224
2	Class Appeals and Responses	225
3	Religious Appeals and Responses	226
4	Rural Appeals and Responses	227
5	Convergence	230
References		231