

Contents

Acknowledgments	vii
Introduction	i
Martin Reuss and Stephen H. Cutcliffe
PART I NATURE, TECHNOLOGY, AND THE HUMAN ELEMENT
Understanding the Place of Humans in Nature	9
James C. Williams
Our Bodies and Our Histories of Technology and the Environment	26
Joy Parr
Can Nature Improve Technology?	43
Peter Coates
PART II CONSTRUCTING LANDSCAPE
The Nature of Industrialization	69
Sara B. Pritchard and Thomas Zeller
Is There a Chinese View of Technology and Nature?	101
Peter C. Perdue
Out West in Places and Spaces	120
William D. Rowley

PART III DEVELOPMENT AND WASTE

The City as an Artifact of Technology and the Environment	145
Joel A. Tarr

Waste and Pollution: Changing Views and Environmental Consequences	171
Craig E. Colten

PART IV BIOLOGY AND TECHNOLOGY

Are Tomatoes Natural?	211
Ann Vileisis

Can Organisms Be Technology?	249
Edmund Russell

PART V HISTORIOGRAPHIC RETROSPECT AND CONCLUDING REFLECTIONS

Where Does Nature End and Culture Begin? Converging Themes in the History of Technology and Environmental History	265
Hugh S. Gorman and Betsy Mendelsohn

Afterword	291
Martin Reuss

Notes on Contributors	303
-----------------------	-----

Index	307
-------	-----