

CONTENTS

[A detailed table of Contents is found at the end of this study]

Acknowledgments	ix
Abbreviations	xi
Foreword	xvii

PART I GENERAL INTRODUCTION

General introduction	3
1. The issue addressed in this study	3
2. The objective of this study	6
3. Relevance of this study	8
4. Scope of this study	13

PART II SUCCESSION OF STATES TO THE OBLIGATION TO REPAIR

Chapter 1 Analysis of doctrine	35
1. The doctrine of non-succession	35
2. Challenges and criticisms of the doctrine of non-succession	52
Chapter 2 Analysis of State practice and case law	59
1. Incorporation of State	62
2. Unification of States	93
3. Dissolution of State	98
4. Cession and transfer of territory	123
5. Secession	142
6. Creation of Newly Independent States	168
7. Conclusion to Chapter 2	201

Chapter 3 Analysis of specific issues	207
1. The predecessor State recognises its liability for an internationally wrongful act	210
2. A judicial body finds the predecessor State responsible for an internationally wrongful act	211
3. The successor State accepts to take over the responsibility for an internationally wrongful act	215
4. The successor State continues an internationally wrongful act committed by the predecessor State	218
5. An insurrectional movement commits an internationally wrongful act during its struggle to establish a new State	224
6. The predecessor State commits an internationally wrongful act during the struggle of an insurrectional movement to establish a new State	250
7. An autonomous government commits an internationally wrongful act	259
8. The use of the principle of unjust enrichment to resolve issues of succession to responsibility	263
9. The use of the principle of equity to resolve issues of succession to responsibility	279
10. The relevance of the territorial factor to resolve issues of succession to responsibility	285
11. The relevance of treaty succession to resolve issues of succession to responsibility	290
12. Internationally wrongful acts having a special character	294
Chapter 4 General conclusion to Part II	299

PART III

SUCCESSION OF STATES TO THE RIGHT TO REPARATION

Chapter 1 The commission of an internationally wrongful act directly affecting the predecessor State	309
1. Analysis of doctrine	309
2. Analysis of State practice and case law	315
3. Conclusion to Chapter 1	335
Chapter 2 The commission of an internationally wrongful act affecting a national of the predecessor State	337
1. Analysis of doctrine	337
2. Analysis of State practice and case law	366
3. Conclusion to Chapter 2	408
Chapter 3 General conclusion to Part III	413

PART IV
GENERAL CONCLUSION

Annexes 1 to 3 437

Bibliography 441

Detailed Table of Contents 485

General Index 493