

Contents

Hartmut Berghoff, Uffa Jensen, Christina Lubinski, Bernd Weisbrod
Introduction 7

The Great Picture

Elwood Carlson
Generations as Demographic Category:
Twentieth-Century U.S. Generations 15

The American Dream

Sarah E. Chinn
“This Terrible American Freedom”:
The Invention of the Generation Gap, 1890-1930 41

Gary Cross
Consumption Patterns as Generational Markers:
American Examples and Comparative Possibilities 68

Johanna A. Brumberg
Preceding the Baby Boom Generation:
The “Generation Gap” in American Intellectual Discourse
During the 1960s and 1970s 82

The Youth Model

Uffa Jensen
The Lure of Authenticity:
Emotions and Generation in the German Youth Movement of the Early 20th Century 109

Dirk Schumann
Youth Culture, Consumption, and Generational Dispositions in Twentieth-Century Germany 125

The Family Model

María Fernández Moya

Books and Family Matter:

A Long-Term Analysis of Intergenerational Transmission Practices
in Spanish Family Publishing Firms (1900-2008) 149

Olof Brunninge and Anders Melander

Family-Firm Identity Across Generations:

The Swedish Pulp and Paper Firms MoDo (1872-1990)
and Korsnäs (1855-2011) 171

The Political Transformation

Volker Benkert

The Last GDR Generation?

The GDR and the Process of Transformation after 1989-1990 as Seen
Through the Eyes of East Germans Born Between 1967 and 1973 195

Astrid Baerwolf

Transformative Motherhood in Eastern Germany:

Generational Styles of Mothering Before and After the Wende 216

Post-Communism

Judith Szapor

The Generation of “Bright Winds”:

A Generation Denied 239

Ondřej Matějka

Uses of a “Generation”:

The Case of the Czech “68ers” 258

Kirsten Gerland

Future Perspectives and Images of the Past:

A “New, Young Generation” of the 1980s in the GDR
and the People’s Republic of Poland 279

Notes on Contributors 300