

Contents

Prologue: the Kyoto School, Confucian revolution and the exhaustion of liberal history	xvii
The book in brief and the key research discoveries: the Kyoto School as Kuhnian anomaly	xix
Escape clause: essence vs. attribute, or how a translation became a reading	xxviii
Acknowledgements	xxxv
Japanese usage and style	xl
Dramatis personae: intellectual leaders of the Imperial Navy – Kyoto School resistance to Tōjō	xli
Essential chronology: the Confucian war of ideas between the Yonai-Kyoto School and Tōjō factions	xliv
Texts, conventions and abbreviations	liii

PART I

Introduction and commentary: the prince of our disorder and the fate of Imperial Japan	1
1 Versailles to Pearl Harbor: Woodrow Wilson and the origin of the ethics of ‘liberal imperialism’	3
2 Ethics as power: the prince of our disorder and the fate of Imperial Japan	8
What is the Kyoto School?	14
3 Learning to resist imperialism: the three phases of the classic Kyoto School and the Chūō Kōron symposia on ‘the standpoint of world history and Japan’	15
4 Confucianism, realism and liberalism: three approaches to the Chūō Kōron symposia	22

5	How East Asians argue: the Confucian form and language of the Chūō Kōron symposia	29
	The Pacific War and the exhaustion of liberal history	34
6	The revisionism of what happens when: Parkes, Ōhashi and the exhaustion of liberal history	35
7	Rejecting Tōjō's decision for war: the Kyoto School rethinks the state, international law and globalization	52
8	Are Japan studies moral? Confucian pacifism and Kellogg-Briand liberalism between Voltaire and Walzer	59
	The Kyoto School and the Post-Meiji Confucian Revolution	67
9	Endless Pearl Harbors? The Kyoto thinker as grand strategist	68
10	Confucian tipping points: how East Asians make up their minds	80
11	Plotting to bring Tōjō down: the Post-Meiji Confucian Revolution and the Kyoto School-Imperial Navy conspiracy	93
PART II
	The Standpoint of World History and Japan or a reading of the complete texts of the three Chūō Kōron symposia	107
I	Two weeks before Pearl Harbor: the first symposium The Standpoint of World History and Japan (26 November 1941)	109
II	Three days after the fall of the Dutch East Indies: the second symposium The Ethical and Historical Character of the East Asian Co-prosperity Sphere (4 March 1942)	182
III	Five months after Midway: the third symposium The Philosophy of World-historical Wars (24 November 1942)	261
	Index	370