

Contents

Introduction.....	9
--------------------------	----------

CHAPTER 1

The Archaeology of a Filmic Form	15
1.1. Early Cinema, Early Spectator	15
1.1.1. The World As Spectacle	20
1.1.2. Transformations of the Visible	25
1.2. The Place of the Look.....	33

CHAPTER 2

Frontiers of the Visible	59
2.1. The Eye and the World, or the Faculty of Sight	59
2.2. Bigger, Not Closer: Grandma's Reading Glass	61
2.3. A History of Filmic Forms and the Historiography of the Cinema	65

CHAPTER 3

The Circle and the Keyhole.....	73
3.1. Clues to a Paradigm.....	73
3.1.1. Autonomy.....	77
3.1.2. The Line of Vision.....	82
3.1.3. Movement	87
3.1.4. The Matte	93
3.1.5. Alternation.....	105
3.1.6. Gesture	110
3.1.7. The Punitive Ending.....	113
3.2. This Side of the Circle, the Other Side of the Keyhole	118

CHAPTER 4

Towards Linearisation	141
4.1. The Look and the Story	141
4.2. Parataxis and Hypotaxis	143
4.2.1. Isomorphic Combinations	146
4.2.2. Polymorphic Combinations.....	151

4.3.	Linearisation, Centring and the Match Cut	154
4.3.1.	The Match Cut and the Look	158
4.3.2.	From the Enlargement to the Insert.....	163
4.3.3.	Alternation and Linkage.....	166
4.3.4.	The Partial Line of Vision	169
4.3.5.	Reading and Writing	173
4.3.6.	The Diegetic Spectator	178
4.4.	With the Naked Eye.....	183
CHAPTER 5
	The Inner Gaze.....	189
5.1.	Forms of Vision	189
5.1.1.	The Magic of the Eye Before the Cinema.....	193
5.1.2.	The Circle and the Focus.....	197
5.1.3.	Forms of the Dream	201
5.1.4.	Attractions and Apparitions.....	207
5.1.5.	The Memory Eye.....	210
5.2.	From Magic to Introspection	214
	Bibliographic References.....	221
	Index of Names and Film Titles	233