

Contents

1	Introduction	1
	Christian Forstner and Mark Walker
Part I Individuals
2	The ‘Invisible Hand’ of Carl Friedrich Gauß—Retracing the Life of Moritz Meyerstein, a 19th century Instrument Maker and Universitäts-Mechanicus	13
	Klaus Hentschel
3	The Personal is Professional: Margaret Maltby’s Life in Physics	37
	Joanna Behrman
4	Erwin Schrödinger in the Second Spanish Republic, 1934–1935	59
	Enric Pérez
5	Ludwig Prandtl: Pioneer of Fluid Mechanics and Science Manager	75
	Michael Eckert
6	Rudolf Tomaschek—An Exponent of the “Deutsche Physik” Movement	89
	Vanessa Osganian
7	The ‘Better’ Nazi: Pascual Jordan and the Third Reich	111
	Dieter Hoffmann and Mark Walker
8	Relativity and Dialectical Materialism: Science, Philosophy and Ideology in Hans-Jürgen Treder’s Early Academic Career	129
	Raphael Schlattmann

9	Biography and Autobiography in the Making of a Genius: Richard P. Feynman	145
	Christian Forstner
 Part II Collectives
10	A Biography of the German Atomic Bomb	163
	Mark Walker
11	The Multiple Lives of the General Relativity Community, 1955–1974	179
	Roberto Lalli
12	Whose Biography Is It Anyway? Shared Biographies of Institutions, Leaders, Instruments, and Self	203
	Catherine Westfall
 Part III Objects
13	Lost in the Production of Time and Space: The Transformation of the Airy Transit Circle from a Working Telescope to a Museum Object	221
	Daniel Belteki
14	Scientific Instruments Turning into Toys: From Franklin’s Pulse Glass to Dipping Birds	237
	Panagiotis Lazos
 Part IV Limitations
15	I’m Not There. Or: Was the Virtual Particle Ever Born?	261
	Markus Ehberger
16	Biography or Obituary? The Historiographical Value of the Death of the Ether	281
	Jaume Navarro
17	The Meaning, Nature, and Scope of Scientific (Auto)Biography	301
	Thomas Söderqvist
	Index	319