

Francisco Javier Minaya Gómez

The Lexical Domain of Beauty and its Metaphors in the Anglo-Saxon Formulaic Style

PETER LANG

Table of Contents

Acknowledgments	5
Abstract	7
Introduction	11
1. From ‘Beauty’ to the Experience of Beauty	15
1.1. ‘Beauty’ as an Aesthetic Idea	15
1.2. Aesthetic Emotions and the Experience of Beauty	36
2. The Anglo-Saxon Mind, Senses and Aesthetic Sensibility	59
2.1. The Anglo-Saxon Senses, Emotions and Psychology	59
2.2. The Anglo-Saxon Aesthetic Experience	87
2.3. Anglo-Saxon Vernacular Verse: Some Considerations and Possible Subdivisions	103
3. The Lexical Domain of Beauty and Appearance	111
3.1. OE ansȳn	111
3.2. OE cȳm-	112
3.3. Adjective OE fæger	113
3.4. Adverb OE fægere	135
3.5. OE fægrian	141
3.6. OE wlite	142
3.7. OE wlitig	151
4. Beauty Is Cleanness	165

5. Beauty Is Colour	171
6. Beauty Is Uniqueness and Excellence	179
7. Beauty Is An Intricate Pattern	189
8. Beauty Is Light	199
9. Beauty Is Nobility	213
10. Beauty Is Aesthetic Pleasure	223
Concluding Remarks	237
Bibliography	255
Index of Names	269