

Contents

Introduction: Pain and Postbellum American Sensibilities	1
--	---

PART ONE. HIGH REALISM

1. "The Taste of Life": Suffering, Literary Mode, and Howellsian Realism	25
2. "No Pain and No Consciousness": The James Siblings, Anesthesia, and Suffering	59
3. "The Blind Dread of Physical Pain": Edith Wharton against the New Thought	95

PART TWO. "CURIOUS REALISM"

4. Stubborn Fractions: Mark Twain, Christian Science, and Pain	127
5. To "Suffer Severely from Injustice": Charles Chesnutt's Realist Vision	167
Epilogue: "True Realism" and a "Truer World"	201
Bibliography	207
Index	229