

At the Roots of Italian Identity

'Race' and 'Nation' in the Italian
Risorgimento, 1796–1870

Edoardo Marcello Barsotti

Contents

|                                                                                                                              |     |
|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-----|
| Acknowledgments                                                                                                       | vii |
| Introduction                                                                                                                 | 1   |
| 1 Prologue: the 'primacy of the nation.' Vincenzo Cuoco and the quest for Italian identity                                   | 20  |
| 2 A plural Italy? Archaeology, linguistics, and racial types in the Restoration age                                          | 46  |
| 3 The 'Lombard Question': Catholic Liberal intelligentsia and the racialization of the Romano-Germanic encounter             | 81  |
| 4 On the complexities of the ethnogenesis: Giandomenico Romagnosi and Carlo Cattaneo on national 'stocks' and racial 'types' | 117 |
| 5 Reconsidering primacy and national genealogies: 'nation' and 'race' in the debate among moderates, 1843–1846               | 151 |
| 6 Epilogue and conclusions: the 'science of nations'                                                                         | 199 |
| Bibliography                                                                                                          | 229 |
| Index                                                                                                                 | 243 |