

CONTENTS

Introduction and editor's note	vii
Short-title list	xi
Chapter One: Virgil: his life and times
N.M. Horsfall	1
Chapter Two: Bucolics
A. Perutelli (Translated by the Editor)	27
Title 27; Date 28; Arrangement 31; Numerology 33; The genre of pastoral 34; Poetic tradition 37; Bucolic characters 42; Countryside and setting 45; Language 47; Metre and Prosody 51; Narrative and dramatic structure 53; Dominant motifs 54; Allegorical interpretations 58; The interpretation of the fourth Eclogue 60
Chapter Three: Georgics
N.M. Horsfall	63
The dating of G. 63; Publics, politics and agriculture 65; Town/country: a false polarity 70; Uidi : observation and tradition 71; The Georgics as a 'transitional' poem 72; Structure 73; The excursus or digression 75; Sources— prose 77; Hesiod 78; Alexandrian Poetry 79; Cato and 'Cato' 81; Lucretius 82; Catullus and the Neoterics 83; Varro 84; Homer 84; G. 4, Gallus and the 'second edition' 86; Language 89
Appendix 1: War; peace; princeps	93
Appendix 2: The actual readership/intended audience of G.	95
Appendix 3: The prooemium to G. 3	96
Appendix 4: The prooemium to G. 1	99
Chapter Four: Aeneid
N.M. Horsfall	101
Book 1: Myth, history, and the subject of the Aeneid 101; Book 2: Points of view; symbolism and imagery 109; Book 3: Character and development 118; Book 4: Love and ethics 123; Book 5 135; Book 6: History and philosophy 144; Book 7: Motivation and responsibility 155; Book 8 162; Book 9: Emotions and evaluations 170; Book 10 179; Book 11: Rhetoric 186; Book 12: Justice and judgement 192

Chapter Five: Style, language and metre
N.M. Horsfall	217
Introduction 217; Language 219; Prosody and morphology; metre and rhythm; sounds and alliteration 222; grammar and syntax; oddities and ambiguities 225; Sentence-structure and relation to verse and rhetoric 231; Development 232; Buc. 9.56–65 237; G. 4.405–14 239; G. 4.490–8 241; Aen. 11.378–91 244
Chapter Six: Virgil's impact at Rome:
The non-literary evidence
N.M. Horsfall	249
Chapter Seven: Virgil: The literary impact
W.R. Barnes	257
Ovid, Metamorphoses 257; Lucan 268; Valerius Flaccus 273; Statius, Thebaid 279; Statius, Achilleid 285; Silius Italicus 287
Chapter Eight: The transmission of Virgil's works
in Antiquity and the Middle Ages
M. Geymonat (Translated by the Editor)	293
The publication of Virgil's poems and the earliest phase of their diffusion in Rome and in the Empire 293; Devotion to Virgil in late antiquity and its swift decline in the early middle ages 303; The renewal of interest in Virgil from the Carolingian period to the Renaissance 310
Appendix
W.V. Clausen The 'Harvard School'	313
Index	315