

Diachronic, Typological, and Areal Aspects of Converbs

Edited by
Paola Cotticelli-Kurras, Eystein Dahl
and Jelena Živojinović

DE GRUYTER
MOUTON

Contents

List of abbreviations — VII

Paola Cotticelli-Kurras, Eystein Dahl and Jelena Živojinović

- 1 Introduction: Converbs in diachronic, typological and areal perspective — 1

Part I: Converbs in the context of linguistic families

Jan Casalicchio

- 2 Same origin, different outcomes. The use of converbial forms with perception verbs in Italian and in the varieties of Northern Italy — 19

Filip De Decker

- 3 The origins of the Greek Genitive Absolute: Nominal, participial or both? — 51

Robin Meyer

- 4 Origin and aspect of the converb in Classical Armenian — 71

Krzysztof Stroiński and Katarzyna Janic

- 5 From clause chaining to compound verb – On morphosyntactic, control and pragmatic properties of Indo-Aryan converbs in a diachronic perspective — 91

Part II: Converbial constructions and competing construction types

Jasper Vangaeve

- 6 From masdar to converb and beyond: The gerund from Latin to Old French — 123

Thomas Wier

- 7 Suffixaufnahme and non-canonical converbs in Georgian — 155

Paola Cotticelli-Kurras, Eystein Dahl and Jelena Živojinović

- 8 The accusative absolute and gerundial constructions in Late Latin — 173

Anna Pompei

- 9 Converbs and participles: The case of Ancient Greek — 201

Carlotta Viti

- 10 A comparative syntax of converbs and related categories in Indo-European — 257

Shinsuke Hidaka

- 11 Syntactic behavior of canonical converbs and quasi-converbs in Uzbek — 293

Part III: The diachronic typology of converbs and their source constructions

Daniel Ross

- 12 The life cycle of converbs: A diachronic typology — 317

Olga Nádvorníková

- 13 The Czech converb confronted with its French and Polish counterparts: Investigation of diachronic factors shaping the properties of converbs — 361

Lucrezia Carnesale

- 14 A comparative study of non-finite verb forms with narrative-chaining function in Hindi and Italian — 415

Adam Pospíšil

- 15 A prefixed verbal structure in colloquial Arabic — 443

Subject index — 469

Language index — 473