

Contents

Chapter 1

Introduction — 1

Chapter 2

The demography of the Republican Party today — 12

The Republican conquest of rural America — 12

Young Americans' flight from Republican enclaves — 19

The vanishing highly educated Republican — 22

The growing partisan marriage gap — 24

Religion and the GOP — 29

Race, ethnicity, and the Republican vote — 38

Non-Hispanic whites — 39

African Americans — 42

Hispanics — 46

Asian Americans — 51

The partisan happiness gap — 53

Conclusion — 57

Chapter 3

Republican policy preferences — 59

Do voters have meaningful policy preferences? — 59

What issues Republicans say they care about — 61

Republicans and economic issues — 66

Taxes — 66

Spending — 68

Trade — 72

Environmental protection — 75

Affirmative action and government efforts to assist minorities — 79

Republicans and social issues — 81

Abortion — 82

Anti-LGBT discrimination and same-sex marriage — 84

Gun control — 89

Republicans and foreign policy — 92

Does public opinion about policy really matter? — 98

Conclusion — 100

Chapter 4

How Republicans think about ideology — 102

Scholarly definitions of ideology — 102

Conservative as a self-description — 104

How do ordinary Republicans describe conservatism and liberalism? — 107

Republican descriptions of ideologies from longer interviews — 112

Conclusion — 113

Chapter 5

Republican cultural attitudes — 114

Republican views on immigration — 115

Republican views on feminism — 123

Republican views on LGBT people — 126

Republican views on religion — 127

Republican trust in the media — 129

Republican trust in government — 132

Republican external efficacy — 135

Republican activism — 137

Republican feelings about upward mobility — 138

Conclusion — 139

Chapter 6

Racism, conspiracy theorists, and affective polarization — 141

Explicit racism in the twentieth century — 142

Explicit racism in the Trump era — 143

Republican feeling thermometer scores for racial/ethnic groups — 146

Republican beliefs in racial stereotypes — 147

Republican racial resentment — 148

Republican feelings of white identity — 151

Republican antisemitism — 152

Republican support for political violence — 154

Republican belief in QAnon and other conspiracy theories — 157

The populism question — 166

Affective partisan polarization — 167

Conclusion — 170

Chapter 7

A center-right party in a changing America — 172

References — 175